

Welcome to the 1st SHARE Conference

at King's College, Cambridge on 14th April 2023

Thank you for joining our first Share conference in our quest to establish the academic rigour needed for a more equitable society – supporting the individual human achievement so vital for democratic capitalism, but at the same time based on egalitarian principles.

For more details visit <https://www.sharealliance.org.uk>.

The Conference concentrates on two of our leading propositions:

- Inter-generational rebalancing; and
- Stock for Data

However, it's also an opportunity to learn about the SHARE project's underlying principles and its planning for the future, and there will be a panel session for general discussion to round off the half-day event.

King's College, in partnership with the Cambridge Faculty of Economics, has established the SHARE initiative (Supporting Human Achievement through Research based on Egalitarian Principles) for a four-year post-doctoral research fellowship leading to completion of this substantial research project. Areas of research include inter-generational wealth transfer; human capital (improving inequality and productivity through education and training); disintermediation; and mass ownership.

Seda Basihos, our research fellow, has joined a dynamic group co-ordinated in the Faculty of Economics by Professor Eric French, including dedicated PhD student Tina Zhang. The members of the group work independently but to mutual advantage in order to achieve significant exposure for the initiative both through academic publication in top international journals and through conferences, web presence, and appropriate media impact.

Meanwhile Gavin Oldham, a fellow commoner of King's College, is closely involved with the initiative and, together with fellow trustees Eve Poole and Giles Pemberton, is establishing Share Alliance to provide corporate co-ordination of the SHARE programme.

Schedule

9.00 for 9.30 am Registration & Coffee

9.30 am Welcome

9.35 am Overview, Underlying Principles & Planning - Gavin Oldham

An introduction to the key building blocks for participation for all, including disintermediation and individual ownership & responsibility, and to our approach for providing academic rigour for a new egalitarian approach to capitalism.

10.05 am Inter-generational Rebalancing - Natasha Richmond, Tina Zhang

Showing how the natural human cycle can enable individual empowerment of young people from disadvantaged backgrounds and setting out the role of starter capital accounts and incentivised learning as a basis for enhancing ability to achieve their potential in adult life.

10.45 am Coffee Break

11.05 am Stock for Data - Seda Basihos

The technological revolution provides an opportunity for a huge expansion of individual equity ownership by issuing stock in recognition of data storage and harvesting. This would enable a large proportion of people across the world to share in wealth creation, as automation gradually replaces the demand for manual input.

11.45 am Building Momentum - David Good, Gavin Oldham

Charting the way forward through research, training, advocacy and implementation both within the UK and overseas.

12.20 pm Panel discussion - Eric French, Michael Mainelli

A general discussion of the above and other ideas.

1.00 pm Buffet Lunch

Welcome to the 1st SHARE Conference
at King's College, Cambridge on 14th April 2023

Thanks for joining us at the first SHARE Conference at King's College, Cambridge

Please keep in touch as the programme develops, via:

<https://www.sharealliance.org.uk/> or contact Gavin Oldham at gavin.oldham@share.institute

